East Timor Human Rights Centre

An independent international centre for the promotion and protection of human rights in East Timor

Chair: Bishop Hilton Deakin
Director: Ms Maria Brett

Human Rights in East Timor

The 1975 invasion of East Timor by Indonesia is recognised by the United Nations as an illegal act of aggression under international law and a violation of East Timor's right to self-determination.

Since the invasion, the people of East Timor have been subjected to continuous gross violations of their human rights. The United Nations and the international community have repeatedly condemned the violations as breaches of international law, however, serious human rights abuses continue to occur in East Timor.
